The current fund performance may be higher or lower than that cited. The current seven-day yield does not include realized gains and losses on the sale of securities. The yields shown above may reflect fee waivers by service providers that subsidize and reduce the total operating expenses of the Funds. Fund yields would be lower if there were no such waivers.

Global Economy

Economic data on the US economy surprised to the upside in October despite a 16-day government shutdown, bolstering expectations the Federal Reserve could soon slow the pace of its bond purchases. US employers added 204,000 jobs, compared to economists' forecasts of 120,000, led by strong gains in the manufacturing and retail sectors. The jobless rate rose to 7.3%, from September's 7.2% when as many as 800,000 federal workers were furloughed during the government shutdown.

A measure of US home prices rose in August representing the greatest increase since February 2006 as strong demand and low inventories boosted values. This data indicates the US housing recovery is gaining momentum in the wake of higher mortgage rates.

Rising stock prices and modest wage growth are giving US consumers the resources to spend as a report forecasting the direction of the US economy for the next three to six months signaled economic growth will accelerate early next year.

Service industries output in the euro zone accelerated in October suggesting the region's economic recovery is gaining momentum after recording growth during the second quarter when it exited a recession. Consumer confidence in Japan dropped in October after the government moved ahead with a planned sales tax increase from 5% to 8% next April.

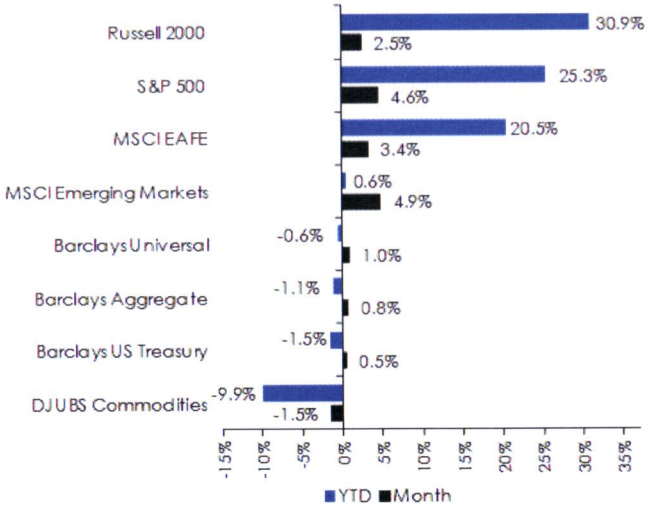
Global Markets

Key Market Indices



Global equities enjoyed strong gains in October amid improving investor sentiment and encouraging signs on the global economy. The MSCI All-Country World index of stocks in 45 markets climbed 4%, bringing the two-month advance to 9.5%, the largest in nearly two years.

US large cap stocks surpassed their small cap peers as the S&P 500 raced to a 4.6% gain, the most since July, fueled by stronger than expected corporate profits. About 80% of the companies in the index that reported 3Q13 earnings met or exceeded analysts' profit forecasts.

Optimism that the euro zone is recovering from a protracted recession and rising corporate profits helped lift European shares to the highest level in more than five years. The Stoxx Europe 600 index gained for a second consecutive month, and the eighth this year, climbing to 322.37, last reached on May 22, 2008. Japan's stocks trailed other developed markets on concerns a higher sales tax would curb economic growth and whether the government can succeed with reforms to make the economic recovery sustainable.

Emerging market equities completed the first back-to-back monthly gains since January. Chinese stocks slumped, ending three consecutive months of gains after money market rates surged as policy makers reduced money supply to fight inflation.

Commodities fell for a second consecutive month led by declining energy prices amid signs of supply surpluses. Crude oil slumped 5.8% after a US Energy Department report showed US daily production has reached nearly 8 million barrels a day, the most since 1989. Gold prices continued to trade with a bearish undertone as investors speculate that the Federal Reserve will trim US monetary stimulus sooner than anticipated.

US Treasury markets were highly volatile in October after the US Congress failed to resolve budget issues, shutting down the government for the first two weeks of the month. Rates on 10-year Treasuries rose 15 basis points (bps) during that period to 2.76%. Rates then tumbled by month's end after lawmakers agreed to raise the debt limit and removed the risk of default.

Ten-year note yields declined 6 bps to 2.55%, while 30-year yields dropped 5 bps to 3.64%. For the month, US Treasuries rose 0.6%, the second-straight monthly gain. US high yield bonds rallied 2.5%, following 1% gains in September, sending yields down 45 bps to 4.16%.

European sovereign bonds rose after a report showing euro-area inflation fell to a four-year low raised speculation that the European Central Bank would lower interest rates to combat a deflationary environment. The region's annual inflation rate fell to 0.7% from 1.1% in September. Spanish 10-year yields declined to 4.03% from 4.30% at the end of September while German 10-year yields fell to 1.67% from 1.78%.

Emerging market bond prices rallied as the JPMorgan EMBI Global index gained 2.7%, matching September gains. The premium investors demand to own emerging market debt over US Treasuries dropped to 327 bps from 355 bps in September.
