The current fund performance may be higher or lower than that cited. The current seven-day yield does not include realized gains and losses on the sale of securities. The yields shown above may reflect fee waivers by service providers that subsidize and reduce the total operating expenses of the Funds. Fund yields would be lower if there were no such waivers.

Global Economy

In May, economic data indicated growth was recovering following a first quarter slowdown caused by harsh winter weather. The improvement in housing related activity and business investment, suggested the underlying expansion was still intact. US home builders broke ground on new construction in April at the fastest pace since last November. Also, sales of previously owned homes increased as a combination of increased supply and cheaper borrowing costs lured buyers. The average rate on a 30-year, fixed rate mortgage fell to 4.26% on May 30, the lowest since June 2013, according to the Mortgage Bankers Association.

US corporations appear to be gaining confidence in the economic recovery after a report on business spending showed orders placed for goods meant to last three or more years climbed for the third straight month in April. The figures reflected a pick-up in demand for equipment, appliances and computers needed to replace aging machinery. Additionally, the Labor Department reported that the US added 217,000 new jobs in May, while the unemployment rate remained steady at 6.3%. The uneven growth over the last five months has kept inflation relatively subdued, as the cost of living in the US rose 2% in April from last year, while stripping out energy and food prices, the "core-CPI" climbed 1.8% over the same time frame.

Japan's first quarter economic growth surged an annualized 5.9%, up from 0.3% at the end of 2013 as consumption and investment was moved forward ahead of April's 3% increase in the consumption tax. The Bank of England signaled it may be the first major central bank to raise interest rates after policy makers revealed its economy had moved closer to the point where they may "gradually" raise rates sometime during the first half of 2015. China's manufacturing expanded at the fastest pace in five months in May, a sign that government measures to stimulate growth are gaining traction.

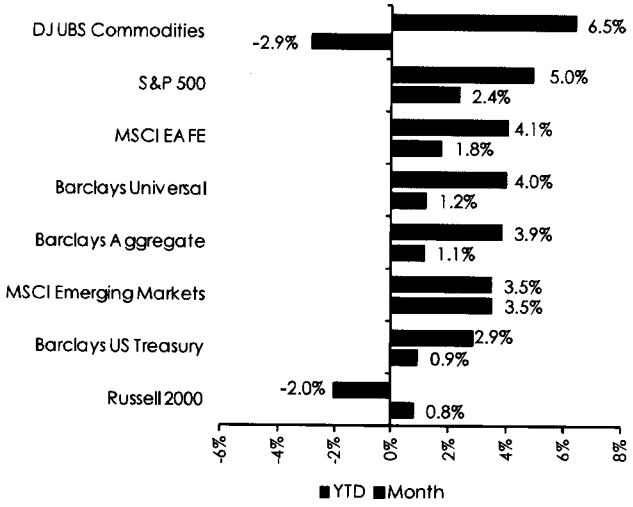
Global Markets

Key Market Indices



Commodity prices lost ground led by a 3.9% decline in gold. Gold's drop was the most since December after reduced tensions in the Ukraine region and rising global equity markets reduced demand for the precious metal.

US stock markets moved sharply higher in May as better-than-expected economic reports and strong corporate earnings reassured investors. The S&P 500 index broke through the 1900 level for the first time to close at a record 1923.57, led by technology (+3.5%) and telecommunication stocks (+3.4%). Based on 98% of companies in the S&P 500 reporting, first quarter profits rose a share-weighted 5.4%, with 70% posting positive earnings surprises. After two months of selling caused by stretched valuations, small cap stocks rebounded, led by health care and real estate stocks.

Robust Japanese economic growth and rising expectations that the European Central Bank (ECB) could ease monetary policy increased investor optimism abroad. The MSCI World index reached an all-time high of 1,715.18 on May 30, up 2% for the month. European shares rose in May, touching a six-year high as investors felt it was increasingly likely the ECB could move to reduce interest rates to further support their lagging economies. Japanese shares advanced, resulting in the first monthly increase this year, after economic growth surprised to the upside and inflation gained the most since 1991, providing evidence that unprecedented monetary stimulus is helping end years of deflation.

Emerging market equities climbed for the fourth straight month led by continued recovery in India and improvement in Russian markets. The MSCI EM index gained 3.5% for the month and has climbed 13% from this year's low on February 5. India's Sensex index added 10% (USD) in May as investors cheered newly elected Prime Minister Narendra Modi and reforms pledged to revive the economy. Russia's Micex index jumped 12% (USD), posting the first positive return this year, as selling pressure eased after President Putin's withdrawal of troops from Ukraine's borders.

US Treasuries rose amid speculation of additional monetary accommodation in Europe and after traders reversed bets on higher US interest rates. Treasury 30-year bonds gained for a fifth month, their longest rally since 2006 amid increasing demand, as bond yields fell 13 basis points (bps) to 3.33%, after touching 3.30%, the lowest level since June 2013. Yields on the benchmark 10-year dropped 17 bps to 2.48%. Toal return on US government securities was 1.1% in May, the most since January.

ECB President Mario Draghi signaled that central bankers are ready to add economic stimulus in June, including interest rate cuts, if they see continued low European inflation which has been below 1% since October, less than half the ECB's goal. European sovereign yields declined for the fifth consecutive month as bond markets discounted a move by the ECB. The benchmark 10-year German bond yield fell 11 bps to 1.36%, the lowest since May 2013. Both Italian and Spanish 10-year yields declined below 3% during the month for the first time on record according to Bloomberg data. Spain's 10-year yield hit a record low of 2.82%, before closing the month at 2.85%, down 20 bps, while Italian 10-year yields fell 10 bps to 2.96%.

Optimism the new Indian government may curb inflation and revive economic growth helped boost the country's bond markets, as India's 10-year sovereign bond yields declined 19 bps to 8.65%, the largest decline since May 2013. Overall, emerging market bonds rallied in May for a fourth straight month as the JPMorgan EMBI Global Diversified index gained 3.1% (USD) following a rise of 1.2% in April. Yields on the index plunged 36 bps to 5.11% after touching 5.08%, the lowest in a year.
